

Checkpoint #1

Elastics Photos, Waistline & Hipline, Circumferences & Verticals

Welcome to your first optional Checkpoint!

While I encourage you to reach out to me any time with any question or puzzle, Checkpoints let you know a little more specifically about when and how extra support or investigation may offer you extra success at certain points throughout the custom toolmaking lessons.

Checkpoints are optional and cumulative. Get started now, stack them up later, let them inspire you to double check your own work without reaching out, or skip them all together. Up to you!

Consider checking in with Brooks Ann:

Every body and project is unique. The lessons I share with everyone can't include specifics about your body or your project, but I can! And I love learning and working with my students. Consider checking in with me!

What to share:

- Your elastics photos: Front view and Side view (Back view optional)
- All of the measurements you've recorded so far (optional)
- Any questions or ideas you'd like to discuss

Where to share:

- If you prefer to work together privately, email me at email@brooksann.com.
- If you are keen to share with your classmates, post in the Group. The more everyone shares with each other, the more everyone learns!

If you have technical questions about how to share, let me know!

If you share your Elastics Photos with me now, I can:

- double check your hipline and waistline elastic placements.
- offer other options for your custom hipline and waistline placement, if needed - or a high-five for being on the right track.
- get us both ready for future measurements and future Checkpoints.

If you also share your Circumference and Vertical measurements with me, I can:

- offer a quick review of your current number data compared to your visual data (before a more thorough review with Checkpoint #2.)
- offer specific advice for number tweaks or extra experimenting, if needed- or a high-five for being on the right track!

If you don't check in with me, consider doing a deep dive to double check and re-explore your own work at this point.

And that's it for Checkpoint #1!

If you don't reach out, I promise not to take it personally. Take it, or leave it! Double check your own work or feel free to move forward now- knowing that the custom process allows for lots of future experimenting and improvements.

Revisions are possible and to be expected and we are just getting started...

Working with me could offer the quickest path to your best education and could make the process even more fun. Check in any time- now or later. It would be my pleasure to work with you.
